AULA 4B SAN GIUSEPPE

Prof. SABINE BROECK, Emerita, BREMEN UNIVERSITAAT

“REFLECTIONS ON THE LIE OF BEING WHITE”

Professor Sabine Broeck will conclude the International Critical Race Studies Seminar that took place online last June, 7-9 2021, with an on-site seminar on James Baldwin's 1984 short piece “On Being White... and Other Lies”.

Coordinator: Cristina Iuli, UPO

Prof. Dr. Sabine Broeck is professor emerita of English-Speaking Cultures and Transnational /Transcultural Studies at the University of Bremen, with foci on intersectionality, narrativity, and slavery. Her research critiques the coloniality and structural anti-black violence of transatlantic modernity as a social formation and culture of enslavement. She was president of the international scholarly organization Collegium for African American Research (CAAR) from 2007 to 2015, as well as founder and director of the University of Bremen Institute for Postcolonial and Transcultural Studies (INPUTS) until 2015. Early in her academic career, she published the monographs Der entkolonisierte Koerper (1988) and White Amnesia-Black Memory? American Women's Writing and History (1999), and she is co-editor, with Stella Bolaki, of Audre Lorde's Transnational Legacies, University of Massachusetts Press 2015, as well as, with Jason Ambrose, of Black Knowledges/Black Struggles: Essays in Critical Epistemology, Liverpool University Press 2015. Her third monograph, Gender and the Abjection of Blackness, was published by SUNY Press in 2018. For more information
